COMMISSIONS AND FEE-SPLITTING CUT

BENDER ACT BECOMES LAW GOVERNOR SIGNS MEASURE

Death Knell to Township Officials Who Have Been in the Habit of Collecting a Divy From Offenders of the Prohibition Law and Other Minor Cases.

Fee-splitting constables and commission cops who have grown wealthy by way of dark and devious liquor law enforcement paths, lost their jobs when Governor Donahey signed the Bender act, which was their death knell.

It places township liquor law agents on the same basis as policemen, and they must work on a salary and not "on commission" from the day the law goes into effect, 90 days hence.

Under the existing law, the liquor fines were divided between the state and the township which collected them on a 50 per cent basis. Out of the township or village half of the fine, agents could be hired to apprehend liquor law violators, and paid on a percentage basis.

This led at once to the employment of constables on commissions that ranged as high as half the township share of the proceeds and the turning of these men loose upon society with a free hand. Arrangements, either actual or tacit, with the justices of the peace who principally hired them, were the natural consequence and the man haled into the cornfield court of these justices on a liquor law charge had scant chance indeed of an acquittal, regardless of his actual guilt.

By placing the administration of justice on a basis where the judge and the officers of the court would get no pay if they got no conviction, the way to temptation was thrown wide open, and abuses became so flagrant that even the Anti-Saloon League was unable longer to keep the system in operation.

Under the new law the officers will be employed permanently on a salary, and will be known, the same as police men are known, and accountable to the public for their conduct.

Another of his bills got gubernatorial approval at the same time. This placed liquor enforcement officers on the same basis as policemen so far as their personal safety is concerned. Under existing laws the person who kills a policeman in the performance of his duties cannot be given a lighter sentence than that for first degree murder. Liquor law enforcement officers performing their duties are given the same legal protection.

He also signed the act raising the pay of court stenographers from 8 to 12 cents a page and the Marshall act relating to the purchase of leases.

Other measures signed during the day include:

The bill by Mrs. Viola D. Romans of Columbus, providing for vocational training at Marysville reformatory for women.

The bill making Orient farm a separate institution instead of a part of the Columbus institution for the feeble minded, as it now is.

A bill re-enacting a part of the Akron municipal court code.

The bill by Senator John Vorys of Columbus raising the charges for pay patients at state hospitals from $3.50 a week to $5.50.

Spirituality of Music

Music is dual in its nature; it is material as well as spiritual. Its material side we apprehend through the sense of hearing and comprehend through the intellect; its spiritual side reaches us through the fancy (or imagination, so be it music of the highest class) and the emotional part of us.—Krehbiel.

ARRESTED FOR DRIVING CAR WHILE DRUNK

William McNamara Was Inviting Girls to Enter His Automobile.

Another state official's son was in bad Wednesday night, April 8, with William Raymond McNamara, son of John McNamara, fiscal director of the department of public welfare, facing charges of illegal possession of liquor and of driving while intoxicated.

These charges against McNamara were placed by Patrolmen George Donaldson and Lee Alkire of No. 2 police substation.

According to these officers they were notified that a drunken motorist was driving in High street, accosting girls and attempting to persuade them to enter his car. Police said they were told he had so far lost control of the auto as to endanger pedestrians and had collided with another auto, damaging it.

Donaldson and Alkire started a search for the auto, which ended when they found McNamara at Northwood avenue and High street and placed him under arrest. A quart bottle partly full of gin, which police say they found in the car, will be used as evidence in the case.

HAL DONAHEY IS GUILTY OF DELINQUENCY

Zanesville Juvenile Judge Assesses Fine of $100 —Ward of Court.

Zanesville Ohio, April 9 (UP).—Hal Donahey, 18, found guilty contributing to the delinquency of Lillian Vogel, 15, was fined $100 and costs and placed in the custody of juvenile court until of age.

Mrs. D. Adrian Yates and son, David, of Columbus, are guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl W. Lutz.

MORE AGENTS ADMIT GUILT IN COURTS

Five more former agents of village "dry" courts plead guilty to charges of conspiring to violate the national prohibition law made against them by the federal grand jury, which investigated the alleged existence of a graft ring by which enforcement officers were paid "protection money" by the bootleggers and narcotic operatives, and returned blanket indictments for 71 former Cincinnati policemen and rural court officers.

RUSSELL TO BE ON TRIAL THIS SPRING

J. E. Russell, suspended prohibition director of Ohio, and seven other Ohioans indicted on charges of conspiracy in the Armand Drug and Candy company withdrawals of whiskey from the Hayner distilleries at Troy, in 1921, will go on trial in Cleveland this spring. United States District Attorney Bernstein has announced.

Harry A. Grossberg, indicted with the others, will first be tried for forgery, the charge upon which he was extradited from Canada. If acquitted, Grossberg will be arraigned and tried with the others, unless he chooses to return to Canada within 24 hours.

Under the extradition proceedings he cannot be tried on any except the forgery charge until given an opportunity to leave the country.

Ankles to Be Seen in Next Courts in England

London.—If dresses designed for the next courts at Buckingham palace, now on view at the shops of various modistes, are followed, there will be less material seen than usual, and more of the wearers' ankles.

Most of the models on view have the extremely short skirts which have come into vogue since the last court was held, and against which there is at present no official regulations. The cut of the neck is very discreet, while the length of train and the veil is also restricted as at previous courts.

One dress on view is of silver and lace finished with ostrich feathers. Another is of pale pink brocade with a girdle of brilliants and a train of gold lace, while a third is of silver and pale mauve.

OFFICERS OF C. A. C. ARE INSTALLED

The newly elected officers of the Circleville Athletic club were installed Tuesday night, April 7, as follows:

President, F. A. Marion; vice president, C. K. Howard; secretary, Elliott L. Voll; treasurer E. C. Ebert.

The executive committee is: Luther Ruff, Frank Littleton and Robert Denman; Lewis Culp, sergeant-at-arms.

After the installation a splendid lunch was enjoyed, prepared by Bill Beck in his inimitable way.

The club is staging a membership drive now which is meeting with big success so far.

TRACTOR AND MOTORCYCLE IN A CRASH

Turney Phillips Sustained Three Broken Ribs and Severely Bruised.

A tractor, driven by a son of Worley Storts, and a motorcycle ridden by Turney Phillips, son of William Phillips, came together on the Ringgold pike, one and one half miles east of town, Friday evening just at dusk. Both were going in the same direction and when the motorcycle hit the tractor engine, the impact wrecked the motorcycle and threw its rider clear over the tractor.

Mr. Phillips was badly injured and was brought to this city in Albaugh's ambulance. He was taken to Dr. D. V. Courtwright's office where it was found that he had sustained three broken ribs and also suffered severe bruises on his body and head.

It is thought that the driver of the motorcycle did not see the tractor until he was right on it and too late to turn out.

NEW OSBORN NEARLY LOST WRIGHT FIELD

Budget Carried Appropriation for Removal to Middletown.

MORRIS RICE ACTIVE

Headed Committee That Went to Washington and Blocked Plan.

A recent issue of "Slipstream" a magazine devoted to aviation, and published in Dayton, carried a lengthy and interesting article on how Osborn retained the Fairfield Air depot.

The author is Morris D. Rice, a lawyer, of Osborn, and a son of Mr. Ell Rice, of Salter Creek township, this county.

The Air service had planned to move the field, but thru the efforts of a committee headed by Mr. Rice, the removal was blocked in the committee on appropriations in congress. This necessitated considerable work and trips to Washington D. C. to lay the matter before the committee and others of great influence. In fact, the matter had gone so far as to be approved by the budget committee and had the formal approval of the president.

Naturally, the Osborn committee is proud of its accomplishments along this line, for it meant the preservation of a large institution for their town and at the same time retained an aviation field back of the first defense lines far enough to be away from the enemy's immediate attack.

Attorney Rice in his article in Slipstream says, in part:

"The idea of flying a machine heavier than air was conceived in the fertile brains of two youths of Dayton, who brought it forth to full fruition thru their combined efforts expended very largely in their home community in the Miami valley.

"Ever since then the activities of the airplane have been very largely centered around its birthplace and it was the natural thing for the government in emergency of the great World war to turn its attention to the location of a great airbase in the Miami valley—the birthplace of aviation.

"The topography and climatic conditions in the Miami valley are ideal for flying. Great stretches of level land, without obstructions thereon make landing safe for the pilot. The people of the community watched over aviation from its infancy and were sympathetic with it. The land was available at once without any controversy or delay. In its wisdom, the government established Wilbur Wright field and began the building thereof in May, 1917, and followed this activity with McCook field. These fields have been maintained and are now in full operation at Dayton.

"Some months ago it became apparent that McCook field would have to be relocated because the area was too small and its use as a flying field was becoming a menace to pilots and the citizens of the community. The citizens of the Miami valley at once provided at their own expense adequate area for its relocation and donated such land to the government in fee simple. The government looked upon this matter carefully, and after due investigation accepted this donation, and congress made an appropriation with which to begin the relocation of McCook field. It seems probable that continued on page five

ASSAILS MEMORY OF ROBIN HOOD

Railroad Threatens to Desecrate Sherwood Forest.

Washington.—Nottingham is reported indignant at the proposal to run a coal-carrying railroad line through Sherwood forest, home of Robin Hood, Little John and Maid Marian.

"The local protests arise not only from respect for a famous legend but because of the abiding beauty of the considerable portions of the forest which remain," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The early Sherwood forest was bounded, roughly, by the towns of Nottingham, Chesterfield, Worksop and Newark. It never was an unbroken woodland; it included pastures, heaths, and even barren tracts with here and there a densely wooded grove. Its original area—some 25 miles long by 10 miles wide—already is cut through by railroads, and inside these older limits today are towns and one cluster of beautiful estates known as the 'Dukeries'."

"Nottingham, on the southern border of the old forest limits, is a thriving city of nearly 300,000 people. It is famous for the strength of its ale and the beauty of its women; for the size of its extensive market place, the mystery of its caves, the annals of its rock-planted castle, and the festivities of its goose fair."

"While the castle rock stands, the inhabitants will tell you, their city will endure."

"At Papplewick is the very cave where Robin Hood and his merry band took shelter."

Built by the First William.

"The original Nottingham castle was built by William the Conqueror. Its grimmest memory is the hanging of 28 Welsh boys, whose bodies were suspended over the walls so the town might see, by order of King John. The boys had been placed there as hostages for the good behavior of their fathers. When the parents rebelled there was no recourse, in those times of direct action, but to execute their sons."

"To this day visitors are shown 'Mortimer's Hole,' a passage through which young King Edward III gained entrance and surprised his mother, Queen Isabella, in company with her lover, Roger Mortimer. The queen-mother's plea, 'Fair son, have pity on the gentle Mortimer,' you will recall, had no effect, and after a sojourn in the London tower the 'Gentle Mortimer' was tied to a horse's tail and dragged to the Tyburn gallows."

"Nottingham's history spans the centuries from the period when the Danes fought the Saxons for a foothold on the Trent, down through the meeting of parliaments there in the Fourteenth century, the raising of the standard of Charles I in 1642, and the dismantling of the castle by Cromwell's troops two years later."

"Then the strife shifted from feudal to industrial struggles. For its prosperity today Nottingham thanks not kings, or generals, or armies, but Richard Arkwright for setting up there, in 1769, the first spinning frame, and John Heathcote who, 40 years later, opened a new era in lace manufacture by his machines for making bobbin net. Today Nottingham is famous for its hosiery and lace."

"Thoresby was the home of Lady Mary Montagu, witty correspondent and travel writer, who is credited with bringing back from Turkey a method of inoculation against small-pox."

"But Thoresby's most famous story is that of the duchess of Kingston. After a secret marriage, at which the parson read the service by the light of a taper in the 'best man's' hat, and the birth of a child, Elizabeth Chudleigh and her first husband separated. She sought a reconciliation when it looked as if Lord Bristol was about to die and leave her long-neglected husband that title."

"After she had arranged a forged registry of her marriage Lord Bristol set her plans awry by recovering. In the meantime she had scandalized the county by various escapades—including her appearance in an extremely décolleté gown at a masked ball. Gossip associated her name with the duke of Kingston and she confirmed the rumors when she was installed as hostess of the merry entertainments at Kingston house. Like the illustrious Lady Hamilton she then began to dream of marriage, and she persuaded her husband to divorce her until he learned such a procedure would mean his assumption of his wife's heavy debts."

"Nothing daunted, Elizabeth brought a suit accusing her husband of falsely proclaiming his marriage to her, she was duly declared a 'spinster,' and London gasped when she married the duke of Kingston."

"Five years later her husband died, but the earl of Bristol inconveniently died about the same time, embarrassing the duchess of Kingston with the added title of the countess of Bristol."

"The courts being faced with this dilemma, commanded the lady's arrest on a charge of bigamy. The countess attested that the registry of her first marriage was bogus, which was true, but witnesses turned up to swear that though the registry was false the marriage actually had occurred."

"Fair enough," pleaded Elizabeth in effect, "if the honorable court adjures I am a countess, I am. But as a countess I am immune from branding in the hand." The bewildered jurors discharged the duchess-countess."

Lace Sure to Be Summer Favorite

Decoration Seen as One of Most Important Items of New Season.

Judging from the new dresses offered very early, and which are really harbingers of summer fashions—laces promise to be one of the most important items of the 1925 season.

Transparent effects are of paramount importance, and laces lend themselves to this effect more easily than do most fabrics. Not only laces, but eyelet embroideries, even for formal costumes, show indications of acceptance as a favored medium for the new transparencies.

Elaboration for spring very often expresses itself in terms of various skirt arrangements, and here, again, godets and flares of lace accomplish the two purposes of skirt fullness and transparency.

There are entire dresses made of silk and chantilly lace, and lace with both printed chiffons and plain fabrics is worked skillfully into the fabric. Colored lace matching the dominant color of the print presents an unusual combination.

The vogue of lace has authoritative endorsement from such couture houses as Chanel, Drecoll, Patou, Agnes, Cyber, Callot, Chermil, and Philippe et Gaston. These sponsor lace treatments principally for afternoon and semiformal wear.

Chanel, for instance, uses yellow silk lace with a printed fabric, and Chermil borders a black chantilly gown with deep white chiffon borders. A titian shade of chantilly and blond chiffon are combined by Callot, the design of the former cut out and cleverly blended with the fabric.

The panel use of lace bids fair to be exceedingly popular, whether as a part of the costume proper or of its foundation. A smart chiffon frock worn in a Paris restaurant recently was posed over a silk foundation with fine panels of cream lace which, of course, showed through the chiffon. Several all-lace costumes have been designated for wear over a flesh colored slip, whether the lace be blond or black chantilly. Two-tone laces in color and metal have the richness that is wanted for evening costumes.

For afternoon, printed chiffons are made with yokes and flares of chantilly or of blond lace of some sort.

Fashion Suggestions That May Prove Useful

Recently there have appeared one or two extremely smart coats made of heavy black satin lined with natural kasha and trimmed with light furs. These are perhaps forerunners of the new spring fashions.

One way to tell whether a frock is new or whether its origin was a few months back is to look at the lower part of the skirt. If it flares slightly or has a flounce, one is safe in deciding that it is in the latest mode. The flounce may be circular or may be only suggested by a skillful arrangement of godet plaits, or, as in many cases, it may be box-plaited, but in all cases it serves to break what would otherwise be an absolutely straight up-and-down line.

A number of charming frocks have been brought out. While primarily designed for southern resort wear, nevertheless they offer many suggestions to the woman who is looking ahead somewhat and already in her mind's eye visualizing her spring and summer wardrobe.

Remarkably stunning are coats of white homespun lined with a brilliant color which repeats the tone of the trimming on the frock. Others of kasha flannel are in pastel shades of rose, blue, yellow and green. And in the more brilliant or darker shades these new coats are an excellent choice for immediate wear.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

YANKS MAKE LIFE SECURE IN HAITI

Nine Years of Rule Transforms Conditions in Republic.

Port-Au-Prince, Haiti.—The accomplishments of the United States during the occupation of the Island of Haiti that has extended over nine years are worthy of note. All the activities necessary to the rehabilitation of the country have been supervised and directed by Americans, with distinct benefit to the republic.

The one great outstanding result of this work is the knowledge of all Haitians and especially the peasant working class, that they are free of the menace of confiscation of their property and that their lives are safe. The poorest man in the island knows he will be able to enjoy the fruits of his labors and that he is free to go and come and carry his possessions with him.

Anarchy reigned in Haiti in July, 1915, and American marines were landed for the protection of the lives and property of American and foreign citizens. Two months later the United States made a treaty with Haiti by which the former country pledged itself to remedy the financial situation and to develop the economic possibilities of the republic.

Big Improvement in Finances.

At this time Haiti was bankrupt with a national debt of $32,000,000. Also she had no credit. Today the national debt is slightly under $23,000,000, the currency is at par in the world's markets, a modern budget system has been established and a cash reserve of $1,306,586 has been built up.

When the American marines landed in the summer of 1915 sanitation was medieval in character and disease was rampant. Today ten hospitals are in operation and dispensaries are maintained in areas outside the hospital zones. Clinics are held in remote places and sanitary inspection maintained in all the cities and towns and the most stringent regulations are enforced and carried out.

It took years of patient effort to overcome the ignorance of the natives and the influence of the witchcraft and voodoo doctors, but today the people are flocking to the American medical men for relief. Malaria is being checked and native doctors and nurses are being trained.

In 1915 public works had virtually ceased to function. Roads were wretched and without bridges and the lighthouses inadequate to the large number of harbors and the dangerous coast. Today there are more than 600 miles of good graveled roads, many new bridges, 800 miles of new telephone and telegraph lines and a good telephone system in Port-Au-Prince. The coast is now encircled by a chain of lighthouses and automatically lighted buoys which make navigation along the coast and into the harbors easy and safe.

6,000 Bandits in 1915.

It is estimated that in the summer of 1915 some 6,000 bandits infested Haiti. Life and property were not safe and travel on public highways almost had ceased. For the last four years Haiti has had peace and security. Peasants have returned to their homes or built new ones and the native or foreigner is perfectly safe in any part of Haiti.

A native gendarmerie of 45 commissioned officers and 2,500 enlisted men has been trained and equipped under the guidance of American marine officers. They have entire charge of the policing of the island and are stationed in every section.

This financial and economic uplift of the island has been accomplished solely through Haitian resources and the friendly co-operation of the Haitian government with Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, United States marine corps, the American high commissioner, and his staff of American treaty officials.

While much has been accomplished there is a long road ahead. Clarification of the laws and the placing of the judiciary on a high plane are now occupying the attention of officials. Modern agriculture is unknown, but a corps of experts from agricultural colleges from the United States is establishing schools and model farms where natives are to be taught both soil and animal industry.

Correcting One's Mistakes

One cannot too soon forget his errors and misdemeanors; for to dwell upon them is to add to the offense, and repentance and sorrow can only be displaced by somewhat better, and which is as free and original as if they had not been. Not to grieve long for any action, but to go immediately and do freshly and otherwise, subtracts so much from the wrong.—Thoreau.

Policemen as Call Boys

In some parts of Europe it is perfectly permissible to use the policeman on a residential beat as a call boy or alarm clock, the only restriction being that in this personal service he does not neglect his official duties. As a result quite a few policemen awaken those who have made a special request to be aroused at a certain hour.

FINDS PREHISTORIC IRRIGATION DITCHES

Expedition Makes Important Find in Arizona.

New York.—Indications of prehistoric extensive irrigation systems and dense population unequaled elsewhere in the United States have been found by Dr. P. E. Goddard, curator of archeology at the American Museum of Natural History, who has just returned from an archeological reconnaissance near Globe, Ariz. Doctor Goddard, who will go West again to prosecute the work, said he believed that a thorough study of the region would throw light on the connection between the prehistoric people of the Valley of Mexico and those who lived and developed a civilization in pre-Spanish times in the country around the upper Colorado and Rio Grande rivers. Doctor Goddard's work already has occupied several weeks and promises rich returns from a scientific standpoint.

Finds the Ditches.

Taking with him as an assistant Ehrlich Schmidt of the museum staff, Doctor Goddard began what it is intended shall be a thorough examination of the ancient remains in the region drained by the lower Salt and the Gila rivers. He found that there had formerly been an intricate series of ditches which furnished water for large tracts of land in the vicinity of Phoenix and Florence, Ariz. His investigations developed that, in many instances, the modern irrigation ditches are merely the prehistoric ones cleaned out and repaired.

In this region, Doctor Goddard said, there also existed structures of considerable size, the walls of which are still standing. He found several pueblos one story in height with common walls. The ruins, which cover a large stretch of territory, vary in size as well as in age.

Doctor Goddard discovered that some of the pueblos were located near valleys where irrigation was not necessary for the successful raising of maize. It is one of these latter, located between Globe and Superior, which he has decided upon for complete excavation. In this particular ruin the communal house contains about one hundred rooms as is indicated by the remaining walls. Already a skeleton in fair state of preservation has been recovered there, together with fragments of pottery and ornaments of shell and turquoise.

In the same neighborhood Doctor Goddard said that he had found well-preserved cliff ruins. It is his view that a thorough examination of these will reveal specimens of the greatest scientific value and interest.

Explored Before.

In 1887 and 1888 some of this territory with its irrigation canals and buildings, was examined by the Hemenway expedition sent out from Harvard university under the leadership of Frank H. Cushing, but only meager reports of its discoveries were ever published. There is, however, one well-preserved ruin in Casa Grande which is at present under the protection of the National Park service of the federal government.

The new field of exploration for the American Museum of Natural History was made possible through the interest of Mrs. William Boyce Thompson, who for some time has made a close study of archeological remains she has encountered in the Southwest. Some years ago Colonel Thompson established a home near his mining properties in the neighborhood of Superior, and Mrs. Thompson, feeling that one trained in exploration should have an opportunity of examining the ruins, recently asked the museum to send a representative to undertake the investigating work.

Mr. Schmidt, who has been left in charge of the explorations during Doctor Goddard's visit here, will continue directly under the doctor's supervision. It is expected that, by means of material assistance and co-operation from Mrs. Thompson, a collection of marked scientific value will be made and brought to New York, where it will be correlated with the great mass of similar material which the American museum now possesses.

the work of this relocation will begin within the next sixty days.

"Wilbur Wright field has the largest supply depot in the world. Another supply depot is located at Middletown, Pennsylvania. Several flying fields are located along the Atlantic seaboard, and these fields, as well as the flying fields located in the various possessions are supplied from either Wilbur Wright field or the field at Middletown.

"It is the policy of the present administration to economize wherever practicable, and that policy has been passed down the line to the army. Some months ago the Air Service division of the army came to the conclusion that it would be more economical to combine the supply depots of Wilbur Wright field and the one at Middletown by moving the Wilbur Wright depot to Middletown, thereby practically abandoning Wilbur Wright field without a definite program for its future, unless it would be the removal of Rantoul and Chanute fields, of Illinois, to Wilbur Wright field, thereby abandoning those fields. In line with this conclusion, the Air Service asked the budget bureau to recommend an appropriation for the removal of the supply depot from Wilbur Wright field to Middletown, which recommendation was made by the bureau and had the approval of the president.

"On February 2, 1925, some of the leading citizens of Osborn, near which village Wilbur Wright field is located learned for the first time that the removal of the supply depot of this field was about to become a reality. A self-appointed committee from this village hastily examined into the matter, and concluded that the move was unjustifiable from several viewpoints but especially from an economic and strategic standpoint. Steps were at once taken to crystallize its views into action. Senators and congressmen were appealed to with strong argument against the proposed move, and there were furnished to Senators Willis and Fess, of Ohio and to Congressman Brand of the Seventh Ohio district, in which Wilbur Wright field is located, briefs against the proposed removal. The views of this committee as set forth in the briefs furnished, argued for the retention of the field from a patriotic, economic and strategic viewpoint.

"It was argued that the air service was mistaken to their conclusions and that a thorough investigation of the whole matter should be made before a move of such magnitude should be made. That the saving claimed for such removal was only a "paper saving," and a matter of fact such removal would mean a loss in dollars and cents to the government. That Wilbur Wright field is the largest and best airfield in the world, containing approximately five square miles of government owned flying land, a part of it being recently donated to the government by patriotic citizens of the Miami valley, surrounded by fifteen square miles of level land, admirable for flying purposes, making it the safest field in the country, whereas the field at Middletown is small and not favorably located for flying purposes.

"These arguments and others not set forth here, convinced the committee on appropriations in the house of representatives that no appropriation should be made for the removal of Wilbur Wright field. It can not be moved without funds for that purpose. So it remains in its present location at least for the time being. It is devoutly hoped that the air service in its wisdom will see the logic of letting it remain for time to come."

AMUSEMENTS

The combined efforts of Mae Murray, Vincente Blasco Ibanez and Robert Z. Leonard have produced a remarkable motion picture in "Circe the Enchantress," which opened last night at the Met theater.

Mae Murray is the star of "Circe the Enchantress" and she does some of the best work of her career in this production. Ibanez, who is the author of "Circe the Enchantress" has written a highly dramatic and yet romantic story which provides Miss Murray with one of the best vehicles she has had. Robert Z. Leonard is the director and he has shown rare skill in his handling of the picture.

Mae Murray enacts a triple role. The mystical Circe, the artless, sweet convent girl, the tempestuous, pleasure-seeking coquette, Miss Murray plays them all with the feeling only known to the great artists of the drama.

Have the Same Meaning

The words "flue" and "chimney" may be used interchangeably, but the word "chimney" usually has reference to the upright structure of brick, stone or the like that extends some distance above a building; it also has reference to the funnel or stack of a steam boiler. The word "flue" is the channel or passage for smoke, air and the gases of combustion to pass through.

HOME OF GOOD SHOES.

"What is her home like?"

It's a question women ask of each other at the club, at the theater, at the luncheon.

"Oh, so---so," with the faintest shrug of the shoulders.

Or perhaps, "Why, nice enough,"---with just a little hesitation, "er---nothing unusual, though."

But, sometimes, the reply is:

"Simply beautiful. Not elaborate, but such good taste."

How much it means socially, a beautiful home.

How much it counts, that impression the guests carries away.

What a world of difference between the ordinary, and the home with a tone of distinction.

to assist you to give your home that "tone of distinction".

We go into the markets of the world for merchandise the will help you in furnishing your home.

DEPOSED AND INDICTED FEDERAL PROHIBITION

Director of Ohio Russell, His Chief Clerk and Attorney Will Attack Validity of Indictments.

Cleveland, April 7.—(U. P.)—Defense attorneys today were expected to attack the validity of the conspiracy indictments against J. E. Russell, federal prohibition director for Ohio and now under suspension, Merle Copeland, chief clerk to Russell, and Warren Barnett, Columbus attorney.

The three men, accused in connection with the alleged Hayner whisky plot by a federal grand jury here more than a month ago, were scheduled to be arraigned on the charge during the day.

Indications were that attorneys would demand that the indictments be dismissed upon the precedent set by the dismissal of the indictments against Albert B. Fall, E. L. Doheny and Harry F. Sinclair, alleged Teapot Dome oil lease conspirators.

Justice McCoy of the District of Columbia supreme court, dismissed the Teapot Dome indictments on the grounds that they were vitiated by the presence of unauthorized persons in the grand jury room while the cases were being considered.

The allegedly unauthorized person was Oliver Pagan, indictment expert for the department of justice.

Pagan also was in the grand jury room here when the indictments charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition law were voted against those involved in the withdrawal of whisky from the Hayner Distillery warehouse at Troy, O.

Defense attorneys are confident this line of argument will result in a dismissal of the indictments against Russell, Copeland and Barnett.

It is probable that others indicted in this conspiracy and who already have been arraigned may ask for a withdrawal of their pleas in order that they may attack the validity of the indictments in the same way.

LOANS up to $500

The whole idea of borrowing money is of fairly recent growth. Most of us have been taught to pay as we go, and avoid debt. Modern business however shows that the man who uses his credit is the man who steps out ahead of the crowd. It is really just another way of saving money, for many of us cannot save anything unless we have an obligation which must be paid. A loan from our company will stand this test.

The redemption division of the Treasury department says that if a person has three-fifths of a bill it can be redeemed for full value. It should be sent to the secretary of the treasury, attention of the redemption division, Washington.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Tells Where America Stands In the Air.

Theodore Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy, discusses the problems of American aircraft from first-hand information and observation in this week's Liberty. He takes up the questions of whether aircraft have made the battleships obsolete and whether there should be a united air service.

"The development of our air service, both from the standpoint of defense and from the standpoint of its commercial value," Mr. Roosevelt says, "is of great importance. We must give it every support. On the other hand, just because it is new and picturesque, we must not be carried away and do things which will injure the defense of the country, and for which we will be sorry later—possibly when it is too late.

"The airplane has not eliminated either the army or the navy. It is not a separate service, but an integral part of both the army and the navy.

"It is urged that sinking of certain old warships by aircraft bombing proves that the battleship is useless. The bombing of these old war vessels was nothing but target practice. Vessels moored at a given place are one thing, vessels cruising in unknown waters are another. Furthermore, it is one thing to bomb a ship that is helpless and another to bomb a ship that can fight back.

"The army and navy are the establishments on which we depend for the defense of our country, our ideals and our homes. In their keeping lies the very peace that we so earnestly desire. Their mission is to guard the United States."

Vast Army of Industry

Factory workers and dealers who gain a livelihood in the building and marketing of one of the leading makes of automobiles constitute an army larger by several thousands than the infantry, cavalry and artillery commanded by the duke of Wellington when he defeated the great Napoleon at Waterloo.

Love and Liberty

Perfect love holds the secret of the world's perfect liberty.—J. G. Holland.

Light From Tree's Petals

Travelers tell of a peculiar tree that grows in certain sections of India that produces great quantities of flowers with long petals, a crop of petals falling from the tree each day. All are gathered by the women, placed in the sun to dry and then are used as candles and provide a pleasant light. The large trees are said to produce 800 pounds of flowers in a single season and the dried petals are the principal aid of the people for the lights they need in their homes.

To Clean Tortoise Shell

To repolish tortoise-shell articles that have become dull and dingy dip the finger in linseed oil and rub over the whole surface. Very little oil should be used and if the article is a patterned one it may be necessary to use a soft brush to get into the crevices. Then rub with the palm of the hand until all oil has disappeared and the shell facies hot and looks bright and shiny.

Find Petrified Forest Near Tonopah, Nev.

Tonopah, Nev.—That there is a petrified forest, one of the most beautiful in the country, within 40 miles of Tonopah, is a fact not generally known. More than 100 petrified trees are still standing, just as they grew originally. Little has been written about this forest on account of its inaccessibility.

The forest covers several hundred acres. The ground is strewn with the fossilized bones of animals and here and there are small caves.

The entrance to the forest is through a small canyon which widens into a river bed, which, in design, reminds one somewhat of the Grand canyon.

William Gomm of Tonopah, with a party, recently visited the scene and brought back several sacks of bones and teeth of enormous size. He said the trunk of one of the petrified standing trees was fully fifty feet high and fifteen feet in circumference.

Gomm has written the secretary of the interior suggesting that the forest be made a national park.

WOEFUL MESSAGE IN CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

Carson fell a victim to the cross-word puzzle craze. He neglected his meals, his business, his family for the insidious squares. His principal diet became the end of a pencil, and his hair was torn out in handfuls during the search for chemical compounds in four letters and antipodean mammals in five. In his sleep he raved about "part of a railway engine," and "native of an eastern country."

One evening he came home and discovered a note from his wife on the dining-room table:

Dear Clarence—Since your life is centered in the solution of cross-word puzzles, here is one that I have made up for you:

- 1—A pronoun of one letter.
- 2—To possess, with four letters.
- 3—Verb with four letters.
- 4—Place where people live.
- 5—Preposition.
- 6—Female relative.
- 7—Girl's name.

Eagerly he concentrated all his wits on the deciphering of this intriguing puzzle, and at last he solved it as follows:

"I have gone home to mother. Mary."
—London Opinion.

Dead Soviet Leader

Lies as if Asleep

Lenin's tomb is a temporary structure built of wood, somewhat Egyptian about its broad, squat base and walls that taper up in conical slant.

It has neither the whiteness nor the dignity that we are accustomed to associate with the mausoleum of a great national figure, writes Fanny Hurst, in McCall's, and yet somehow, some way, there is a strange brooding beauty about this small wooden tomb, set out in the cobblestone aridity of Red square. Here stands the shrine of the Soviets.

Lenin has been dead almost a year now, but suddenly you come upon him, lying there so in the casual attitude of taking a nap, that you are almost compelled to tiptoe.

By a chemical process of preservation there lies Lenin in the flesh! Not in the dead flesh. But upon his cheeks is almost that mysterious pollen of life. He is lying on a couch, a counterpane tossed lightly over him and neither sublimity nor unearthly peace upon his face. Just sleep. A tired man—resting.

By this process of embalming, more cunning than anything the Egyptians ever devised, it is claimed that the human body can be preserved indefinitely.

Some Compliment

Roger and his father and mother had Thanksgiving dinner at grandma's. After an elaborate meal, which grandma herself had prepared, the guests all sat about chatting. It was suggested that each tell what he was most thankful for, and the idea was acted upon with enthusiasm. It came Roger's turn.

"How about you, Roddy? What have you got to say?" someone asked. The little fellow looked thoughtful. Then his face brightened, and he said: "I've thankfulest for my daddy, 'cause he picked me out such a nice grandma!"

Their Supposition

"Great Scott!" we astoundedly ejaculated, "you ran your car in broad daylight, full-tilt, head-on, against the side of the locomotive, although the whistle was blowing, the bell ringing and the engineer and firemen yelling at the top of their voices? What in the world made you do that?" "We thought they were daring us," replied the pimply, pinfeathery youths, "and we couldn't stand that."—Kansas City Star.

Canal Makes Record

Traffic through the Welland canal during the season of 1924 was the heaviest of any year in the history of that waterway. From its opening last year on April 16 to its close on December 13, the freight carried through the canal amounted to 5,037,412 tons, which was more than 1,280,000 tons ahead of the previous year and 1,750,000 tons ahead of the previous high record made in 1914.

Record Fruit Crop

British Columbia's fruit crop in 1923 was the largest on record, amounting to 176,887,879 pounds, exceeding that of the previous year by 84,952 pounds. The total value of the crop was $8,034,976, being an increase of 22.7 per cent over the year 1922.

Giving Father Away

"Fred, you were very restless in church this morning. Why couldn't you keep as still as your father?" "I don't know, mamma," replied the observant youngster, "unless it's 'cause I wasn't sleepy."
